SYMPOSIUM ADDRESSES RIGHT TO PRIVACY

MISSOULA—

A three-day symposium at The University of Montana will focus on issues of autonomy and informational privacy.

“The Right to Privacy” will be held Wednesday through Friday, Oct. 11-13, in the UM School of Law Castles Center. Symposium presentations are free and open to the public.

Question-and-answer sessions will follow each presentation.

The event, hosted by the Montana Law Review, is the UM School of Law’s Honorable James R. Browning Symposium.

The symposium honors Judge James R. Browning of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. Browning was raised in Belt and graduated from the UM’s law school in 1941. He was a member of the first editorial board of the Montana Law Review. In 1961 President Kennedy appointed Browning to the Ninth Circuit, and he continues to serve today.

For more information call the UM School of Law at 406-243-4311. A complete schedule of symposium events and more information about presenters is online at <http://www.umt.edu/mlr/symposium.htm>.
